Engelbrecht ready to read her final chapter

■ Retirement party planned for Ed White reading specialist

by Barb Geerts

When Ed White School reading specialist Leona Engelbrecht was looking for her first teaching job back in 1942, she didn't check in the classifieds.

Instead, she drove the rural countryside, stopping at farms to indicate her interest in teaching the farmers' sons and daughters. If you impressed them, "You signed the contract by the barn," Engelbrecht recalls.

More than half a century after she took her first teaching position at a country school in Blue Grass Township, Engelbrecht has decided to close the book on her career. She will be honored at a Retirement Party on Thursday, May 16 from 3:30-5 p.m. in the gym of Ed White School, Eldridge. The public is invited.

Engelbrecht served as North Scott's first reading specialist when she joined the district in 1966. At that time, she traveled up to 50 miles a day, visiting schools in Donahue, Dixon and other areas to help boost students' reading skills.

Because the reading program was new, the schools initially lacked the space needed to accommodate Engelbrecht and her students. "I taught in a clothes closet, at a church across from the school – anywhere I could find room," she recalls.

As the program expanded and additional instructors were added, Engelbrecht no longer had to travel from school to school, instead devoting her entire school day to Ed White students.

She estimates she sees about 40 students a day as the reading specialist. The biggest challenge is working with the staff to schedule times for the pull-out program, she says. "You're taking them out of class for 20 minutes."

Engelbrecht said that as reading specialist, she is able to "zero in" on a child's reading difficulties, and "figure out what to do."

As an incentive to get kids to read, she offers a "Reading Around the World and To the Farm" program. "They get to pick out a prize from the Treasure Chest if they've read 10 books. It's their incentive to get it done on time."

Students who master 100 books during the program are invited to her farm near Eldridge for a year-end hot dog roast – an activity that "city kids," especially, seem to enjoy, she says. "Just to be out in the country is a treat for them."

While students seldom set foot inside a teacher's home, that isn't the case for Engelbrecht's "kids." For years, she has tutored students in reading. She normally teaches a dozen or more pupils in individual, hour-long sessions. And despite the fact that Engelbrecht doesn't advertise her tutoring services, she has never had a shortage of students. "I'm booked solid through the summer," she said, adding that she has tutored two – and in one case, even three – generations of families.

Engelbrecht has no plans to discontinue her tutoring, despite her retirement from Ed White. She said she enjoys seeing students excel in a subject which once gave them trouble. "I had one boy who really had a tough time, and he's in the third grade now and is the fastest reader (in his class)," she said.

Leona Engelbrecht

"You have to get them excited (about reading), let them have fun doing it," she says of her duties as a reading specialist. "If it's a chore, they won't do it."

Engelbrecht said it was a teacher at Fulton 3M Country School in Blue Grass Township – Vera Rohlf – who first inspired her to become an educator.

"After completing a teacher's training course at Davenport High School, I received a scholarship to Iowa State Teacher's College in Cedar Falls for one year in 1941-42," she said.

Engelbrecht taught in Blue Grass Township for two years before moving to another country school near Walcott. She taught grades 1-8 at that school.

After she married Will Engelbrecht in 1946, she gave up her full-time teaching job to help on the farm. "Everyone had a big garden in those days and we all canned a lot of fruits and vegetables."

While she raised her children (sons Loren, Dean, Arlan and Brian), she substituted in the North Scott School District for 16 years, filling in at both the elementary and secondary levels. During that time, she continued taking college courses in the evening at Marycrest College, receiving her teaching degree in 1965 and her master's degree in 1973.

Since landing the reading specialist job at Ed White three decades ago, she has devoted much of her 'free' time to educating youngsters. "I've never had time for hobbies," she laughs.

Still, she has managed to do some extensive traveling – visiting almost every state in the U.S. and several European countries. She and her husband, who passed away last November, also took annual fishing trips to Snake Falls Camp in northern Canada.

Retirement represents an end to another of life's chapters for Engelbrecht, who still plans to do some volunteer work in the schools.

"I have enjoyed a total of 50 years in teaching and have many great memories," Engelbrecht said of her lengthy career. "I've like my job. It's just plain fun."
